
Values above 1 mean untestable targets are more likely to be expressed in only a few tissues. The attrition is therefore not random: it removes a specific kind of target, and does so slightly more strongly among cardiovascular targets than across all drug targets. Counts are the targets carrying the tissue-specificity annotation needed for the comparison, which is fewer than the full sets (630 cardiovascular, 594 strict).
Reproduce: python src/a2_robustness.py ; python src/make_figures.py